Chapter 1 General Principles

Article 1 This Act is formulated to fairly, promptly and effectively handle public nuisance disputes, to safeguard the rights and interests of the people, and to improve social harmony.

Article 2 The term “public nuisance” in this Act means human activities which destroy the living environment, and damage or endanger public health. Such activities include water pollution, air pollution, soil pollution, noise, vibration, noxious odors, waste, toxic substance pollution, land subsidence, radioactive pollution and other activities officially designated and announced as public nuisances by the central competent authorities.

“Public nuisance dispute” as referred to in this Act means a civil dispute resulting from a public nuisance or possible occurrence of a public nuisance.

Article 3 Pursuant to this Act, parties by public nuisance disputes may apply for mediation or arbitration.

Chapter 2 Organizations Handling Public Disputes

Subchapter 1 Mediation Committees

Article 4 All special municipalities and county (city) governments shall establish their own public nuisance dispute mediation committees (herein referred to as “mediation committee”) to mediate public nuisance disputes.

Article 5

A mediation committee shall consist of nine to 21 members. One of the members shall be the chairman of the committee.

Article 5 The chairman of the mediation committee in special municipalities shall be the mayor of that municipality, or a suitable person designated by the mayor. The county commissioner or city mayor shall be the chairman of the mediation committee in a county or city. Other members of the committee shall be representatives of relevant authorities, scholars and experts of environmental protection, law and medicine, as well as impartial citizens, and selected and appointed by the special municipality mayor, county commissioner or city mayor. Scholars, experts and impartial citizens shall make up no less than two thirds of the total committee membership.

The term of each member of a mediation committee shall be three years. Members may be reappointed.

Article 6 Should a member of a mediation committee resign his or her position, the successor shall serve until the end of the original term.

Mediation committee members shall exercise their powers independently and in accordance with the law. A member may not be dismissed during his or her term unless any of the following situations occur:

I. the member receives a prison sentence.

Article 7 II. the member declares bankruptcy, or has been declared mentally incompetent or under guardianship.

III. the member is a civil servant but is dismissed or suspended from his or her position as a result of disciplinary action.

IV. the member is unable to execute his or her duties due to physical or mental handicap.

Article 8 After being drafted and promulgated, the organizational rules of the mediation committee shall be submitted by the special municipality and county (city) governments to the Environmental Protection Administration, Executive Yuan for future reference.

Subchapter 2 Arbitration Panel

Article 9 The Environmental Protection Administration of the Executive Yuan shall set up a Public Nuisance Dispute Arbitration Panel (herein referred to as the “Arbitration Panel”) to arbitrate public nuisance disputes over damage claims unresolved by mediation procedures.

The Arbitration Panel shall consist of one chairperson, and of from seven to eleven members.

Article 10 The members of the Arbitration Panel shall be selected by the director of the Environmental Protection Administration, Executive Yuan, from among respected impartial individuals with expertise in environmental protection, law, medicine or other relevant disciplines. The list of selected members shall be submitted to the Executive Yuan for approval prior to appointment.

The chairperson of the Arbitration Panel shall serve full-time. Other members of this panel may serve part-time.

Article 11 The chairperson of the Arbitration Panel shall possess one of the following qualifications:

I. be a qualified judge, prosecutor or public defender.

II. be a qualified lawyer.

III. have served as a full-time professor for two years, or a full-time associate professor for three years in the law department or in a legal research institute at a public or a registered private university or an independent college, or have lectured on legal subjects for more than three years.

IV. have served for more than five years in a legal or appeals agency at any governmental level, and have more than three years' experience of handling affairs concerning laws and regulations or appeals.

Article 12

The organizational rules of the Arbitration Panel shall be drafted by the Environmental Protection Administration of the Executive Yuan, and be submitted to the Executive Yuan for approval prior to promulgation.

Article 13

The regulations in Articles 6 and 7 shall apply to the members of the Arbitration Panel.

Chapter 3 Resolution Procedures

Subchapter 1 Mediation

Article 14

A party to a public nuisance dispute may apply for mediation by submitting an application form to the mediation committee in the special municipality, county (city) where the public nuisance dispute or damage occurred.

One-third of the mediation committee's members must be present for the committee to be in quorum. However, following the agreement of the two parties, a dispute may be mediated by one or several committee members.

Article 15

The chairperson of the mediation committee shall act as chairperson when the committee convenes. When the chairperson is unable to attend a meeting for some reason, the attending committee members shall select one member to act as chairperson.

Article 16

Should one of the following situations occur, the Arbitration Panel shall assign jurisdiction to a mediation committee upon the application by a party to a dispute or by the mediation committee in a special municipality, county (city):

Article 16

I. the origin of a public nuisance dispute or damages covers several special municipalities, counties (cities);

II. two or more mediation committees disagree on the jurisdiction of a dispute;

III. the mediation committee with jurisdiction cannot mediate the dispute on de jure or de facto grounds;

IV. it is not clear which mediation committee shall have jurisdiction because of poor delineation of territorial jurisdiction.

No objection may be made against the designation of jurisdiction referred to in the preceding paragraph.

Article 17

A committee member shall voluntarily recuse himself or herself when a dispute involves that member or members of his or her family.

Article 18

If a mediation committee considers an application for mediation to be illegal, the application must be rejected clearly stating the reasons for rejection. However, in those circumstances in which corrections can be made, a committee shall order the applicant to make corrections within a designated period.

Article 18

The same procedure shall apply when the situation described in the preceding paragraph is discovered during the mediation process.

When a mediation committee considers a dispute to fall outside its jurisdiction, that dispute shall be transferred to the mediation committee holding jurisdiction.

Article 19

Several parties sharing common interests in a public nuisance dispute may jointly apply for mediation. During the process of mediation, a third person claiming to share a common interest with an involved party may, upon the approval of the mediation committee, join the ongoing mediation process as a party.

The mediation committee shall consider the opinions of the original parties when granting the approval referred to in the preceding paragraph.

Several persons sharing a common interest in a public nuisance dispute may elect, among themselves, one or several persons to apply for mediation or proceed with mediation on behalf of all.

Article 20 The elected person or persons may be replaced, or their number increased or reduced.

The election referred to in Paragraph 1 above, and the replacement, increase and reduction referred to in the preceding paragraph, shall be conducted in writing, and the person or persons concerned shall be notified.

Article 21 Should the mediation committee consider it appropriate for several persons sharing a common interest in a public nuisance dispute to elect a party among themselves to proceed with the mediation, the mediation committee may recommend or assist parties in doing so.

Article 22 The person or persons elected pursuant to the preceding two articles may not withdraw an application for mediation, reach an agreement, or agree upon a mediation proposal without special written authorization by those who elected them.

Article 23 The mediation procedure shall proceed in public. However, those circumstances in which the mediation committee deems that the mediation will be obstructed if conducted in public, and in which this determination receives the approval of the concerned parties, shall not be subject to this restriction.

A mediation committee may request assistance from relevant agencies to investigate evidence.

Article 24 When the investigation referred to in the preceding paragraph only can be carried out by a court of law, the mediation committee may request assistance from a court of law.

A court acting upon such a request shall have all the powers of a court of law concerning the investigation of evidence.

Article 25 A mediation committee may commission the environmental protection competent authority, other relevant agencies, organizations and groups, or experts and scholars possessing professional knowledge, to perform necessary appraisals for the purposes of determining the reasons and responsibilities concerning a public nuisance dispute. All expenses for the appraisals shall first be borne by the government. If one of the parties later is found responsible for the damages arising from the public nuisance dispute, that party shall be responsible for bearing the expenses and also reimbursing the government.

Article 26 The members of the mediation committee shall sincerely and amicably provide both parties with appropriate advice and assist the parties in reaching an agreement.

When an agreement is reached by the two parties, a mediation is achieved.

Article 27

Article 27 Should the parties have difficulty in reaching an agreement, the mediation committee shall, taking all factors into consideration and striving for a balance of the interests of both parties, propose a mediation proposal upon the approval of more than one-half of the whole body of committee members and designate a period of less than 45 days within which the mediation committee advises the two parties to accept the proposal. When necessary, the period may be extended with another 45 days.

Should the parties involved fail to express their disagreement with the proposal within the period designated in the preceding paragraph, the mediation proposal shall be deemed accepted by both parties and the mediation concluded.

When one or several persons in a party of more than two persons with a common interest have expressed disagreement with the proposal within the period designated pursuant to Paragraph 1 of this Article, the mediation proposal shall not bind on these persons. The mediation proposal shall, however, be considered as accepted by the rest of the party. Should the persons who have expressed their disagreement with the mediation proposal within the designated period constitute more than one-half of the total number of individuals in their party, the mediation shall be regarded as unachieved.

When the mediation committee acts in an advisory capacity as referred to in Paragraph 1 of this Article, it may make the mediation proposal public if it finds the situation to be appropriate.

When a mediation is achieved, a mediation accord shall be prepared within 7 days of the achieved mediation and submitted for approval to a court holding jurisdiction.

If the mediation accord does not contravene applicable laws and regulations, the court shall approve the accord at its earliest convenience and return the accord to the mediation committee for delivery to the parties.

Article 28

When the court cannot approve a mediation accord because the mediation procedure or the contents of the mediation accord contravene applicable laws and regulations, the court shall inform the mediation committee of the reasons for not approving the accord. When the situation can be corrected, the court shall first designate a period for doing so.

Article 29

A mediation accord shall contain the following items and be signed by the parties and the committee members present. However, a mediation proposal deemed successful pursuant to Article 27 of this Act shall be signed by the members of the mediation committee in agreement with the proposal.

Article 29

I. The name(s), permanent residence address(es) and temporary residence address(es) of the parties. If the parties are juristic persons or other organizations, the name(s) of the person(s) or organization(s) and their representative(s) and principal office address(es) or business address(es).

II. If the parties have representative(s) or agent(s), the name(s), permanent residence address(es) and temporary residence address(es) of the representatives or agents.

III. the reasons for the mediation.

IV. the contents of the achieved mediation.

V. the location where the mediation was achieved.

VI. the date the mediation was concluded.

A mediation accord approved by a court shall have the same effect as a binding judgment under the civil litigation. The parties may not bring a suit in a court of law over the same subject matter. The mediation accord may serve as a legal basis for compulsory enforcement.

Article 30

Enterprises may conclude environmental protection agreements with local residents or local governments to prevent the occurrence of public nuisances.

In the event of breach, the agreements referred to in the preceding paragraph, may, once notarized, serve as legal bases for compulsory enforcement without entering into a mediation process.

Article 31	When there is reason for finding a mediation approved by a court of law void or voidable, a party to the dispute may bring a lawsuit to declare the mediation void or cancelled in the court of law which first approved the mediation. The lawsuit referred to in the preceding paragraph shall be filed in the court within 30 days of the delivery of the mediation accord approved by the court.
Article 32	(Deleted)
Subchapter 2 Arbitration
	When a dispute over damage claims arising from a public nuisance dispute remains unresolved after mediation by the mediation committee in a special municipality, county (city) government, the parties may apply for arbitration of that dispute. An application for arbitration shall be submitted, with an application form, to the original mediation committee of the special municipality, county (city) government within 14 days of delivery of notification that mediation was not achieved. Upon receipt of the application referred to in the preceding paragraph, the special municipality, county (city) mediation committee shall promptly submit a copy of the application to the other parties, and shall also submit files relevant to the mediation, the application for arbitration and other relevant documents to the Arbitration Panel. Arbitration shall be conducted via an arbitration tribunal composed of 3 or 5 arbitration panel members designated by the chairman of the Panel. The tribunal referred to in the preceding paragraph shall be decided by a majority of the designated members.
Article 33
Article 34	When more than three different opinions of members exist on the amount of money, and no one opinion enjoys majority support, the vote for the opinion constituting the highest amount of money shall be added to the vote for the opinion granting the next highest amount of money, and so on until a majority opinion is reached.
Article 35	Before delivering an arbitration decision, the arbitration panel shall hear from the parties and conduct necessary inquiries into the facts.
Article 36	The arbitration panel shall render its arbitration decision within three months of the date the application is submitted by the parties, and deliver it to the parties. When necessary, this period may be extended for another three months.
	Article 37
	An arbitration decision shall contain the following items, and be signed by the panel members. I. The name(s), permanent residence address(es) and temporary residence address(es) of the parties. If the parties are juristic persons or other organizations, the name(s) of the person(s) or organization(s) and their representative(s) and principal office address(es) or business address(es) II. if the parties have representative(s) or agent(s), the name(s), permanent residence address(es) and temporary residence address(es) of the representatives/agents III. main body of the text IV. the facts V. the reasons VI. date An original copy of the arbitration decision shall be delivered to the parties within 10 days of the issuance of the decision.
Article 37

Article 38	Whenever the parties reach an agreement during the arbitration process, the arbitration panel shall prepare an Agreement using Articles 28 to 31. The arbitration procedure shall be concluded when the Agreement is completed. Where the parties in arbitration have not initiated a civil action in a court of law over the same dispute within 20 days of delivery of an original copy of the arbitration decision, or if the parties have subsequently withdrawn such civil action, the arbitration decision shall be deemed an Agreement among the parties to the dispute.
Article 39	Where parties to an arbitration decision are deemed to be in Agreement pursuant to the preceding paragraph, the arbitration panel shall, within 7 days of the expiration of the time-period referred to in the preceding paragraph, submit the arbitration decision for approval at the court holding jurisdiction. Where appropriate, Paragraphs 2 and 3 of Article 28, and Articles 30 and 31 shall apply to the situations referred to in the preceding paragraph.
Article 40	The provisions of Articles 17 to 22 and Articles 24 and 25 shall apply to arbitration proceedings.
Chapter 4 Supplementary Provisions	Prior to approval of a mediation accord, an Agreement, or an arbitration decision by a court of law, the parties may, based on the mediation accord, the Agreement or the arbitration decision, apply to the court of law for provisional attachment or provisional injunction to secure compulsory enforcement or to avoid increased damages. When making the application prescribed in the preceding paragraph, the parties may submit a mediation accord, an Agreement, or an arbitration decision as a substitute for cause for provisional seizure or provisional disposition. For those who use an arbitration decision as substitute for cause for provisional seizure or provisional disposition, no pledge is required.
Article 41	Where appropriate, the provisions of the Civil Procedures Act concerning provisional seizure and provisional disposition, not including Article 529 thereof, shall apply to the situations referred to in the preceding two Paragraphs. Should the court of law disapprove a mediation accord, an Agreement, or an arbitration decision, the parties may apply to have the decree of provisional seizure or decree of provisional disposition revoked. The procedure referred to in the preceding paragraph shall apply when a party brings a civil lawsuit in a court of law or when a party does not revoke a lawsuit. A public nuisance dispute with regard to which investigatory hearings in a court of the first instance are concluded may not be subject to mediation or arbitration. When parties to a public nuisance dispute have filed the dispute in a court of the first instance and also have applied for mediation or arbitration of the dispute pursuant to this Act, that court may, before mediation or arbitration succeeds, suspend the litigation proceeding. When the mediation or arbitration is approved by a court of law, the action filed shall be deemed withdrawn.
Article 42	When the parties have filed a public nuisance dispute for mediation pursuant to the The Township and County-Administered City Mediation Act and also have applied for mediation or arbitration of the dispute pursuant to this Act, the preceding paragraph shall apply. For mediation and arbitration applied for pursuant to this Act, mediation fees, arbitration fees, appraisal fees and evidence investigation fees may be collected.
